ABOUT HARD TIMES

AMITY, July 28, 1873.

To the Editor of the Oregonian:

Hard times are complained of. What causes them? How can the evil be remedied? Let us analyze the subject a few moments. Could I get at a correct estimate of the money annually extracted from our State in the excess of the sum brought into it, we could readily see what causes the hard times. The simple article of three cent postage [illegible] startling [illegible] remedy, but I mention it in connection with necessary evils.

Life and fire insurance companies are [illegible] institutions, but they should be patronized at home instead of sending our money abroad. [illegible] everybody that sends the money out of this State in behalf of those institutions were to lend their aid to the support of one of our [illegible] at home we could have life and fire insurance company at home built up in a firm foundation.

Who can estimate the sums annually exported from our State to New York, Chicago, Boston and elsewhere for this purpose? Tens of thousands of the shining [illegible] yearly sent to Wisconsin, Boston, Maine, New York, California and to divers of other States for wagons and machinery of all kinds.

You would not believe it if you were to see in figures [illegible] sent from our State for boots, shoes and wearing apparel. When we have a pair of boots made we want to be sure it is not Oregon leather. The farther it has been imported the better. We want to be sure our harness was not made this side of the Rocky Mountains.

Thousands of poor and needy white men and women are excluded from employment and I might say from earning an honest livelihood, and their places are filled by Chinamen who send three-fourths of their earnings to China. If we were not to employ a single one of these, but employ white persons to fill their places, there would not be so much stealing, robbing and plundering done and we could see a little more money afloat.

The only things money is brought into our State for is grain and wool and the greater amount of that immediately returns to California.

The most of the farmers trade on one year's time at their favorite store. It is generally the case where one deals on credit, that he purchases much more than he would if he paid cash. Their bills will probably run up to $500 per year, whereas if they were to pay as they go it would not be more than half that sum. The result is that when pay-day comes, considering the price paid for grain—the proceeds of their year's labor go to the retail dealer, from him to the wholesale merchant—and a large per centage of that is locked up, while they forward the rest to New York for a new stock of goods.

[illegible] remove the [illegible]. This it is in this matter. We have found the [illegible] now let us devise how to remedy it. We ought to patronize home industry more, and patronize no one that does not [illegible] our wagons, carriages and machinery [illegible] manufactories. We can get them just as cheap and good, made in our State, as ten thousand miles away. Economize more—never allow ourselves to be locked down with the [illegible] of debt when it can possibly be avoided. If we have not money enough to buy a new [illegible] let us wear the old one a little longer. Let us raise poultry and [illegible] cheese and butter, take eggs to market [illegible] and we will soon remove the cause. The merchants would be glad to do this. They want to see the country prosper.

The farmers are the bone and sinew of our country. When they prosper business of all kinds prospers also. They have been badly dealt with for a long time. While they were following the plow or in the harvest field, monopolists and tricky traders were devising how to extract from them the [illegible] of their labor, and so apparent have become their [illegible] that the farmers have risen in their might and resolved to put down these impositions. They intend to change the tune, and while they are playing on the new string they should not rush into [illegible] a boon will be their reward.

Now as the farmers have made a break [illegible] others [illegible] do likewise, and we shall have no more the sad phrase "hard times." So great are the evils menacing us that the matter cannot be made right in a day. An old sore cannot be healed up, to say healed in a day, but we [illegible] by degrees, it can be cured permanently.

Right here I will say that it is a source of pleasure to know that we have at least one [illegible] paper—the OREGONIAN—that takes the side of the people, instead of [illegible] and the [illegible] every person just for party name. P.

A FATAL MISTAKE.—The Harrisburg (Pa.) Telegraph says: Ruth [illegible] a resident of Hollidaysburg, visited a place called Dell Delight, in this vicinity, on Saturday morning, thinking that he might find [illegible] something valuable that had been lost at a picnic the day before. In his peregrinations through the Dell he discovered a demijohn partly filled with vitriol [illegible] had been used the day previous by the [illegible]

Those who want to be teetotalers should let up on eating bread. A New Yorker has discovered that twenty-four pound loaves of bread contain as much alcohol as a bottle of port wine.

In a recent case of assault with intent to kill in Indiana it was shown that the affray came about from a father insisting on remaining in the room with his daughter and her beau. The jury cleared the young man.

Ballston Spa, which the grandmothers remember as the most fashionable watering place in the country when they were girls, is again renewing its youth and attracting many from Saratoga, which is only seven miles away.

The Board of Health of Paducah, Ky., have given the free run of the streets to all pigs within the city limits, on the ground that these animals are excellent scavengers and will do their utmost to promote the public health.

This is a specimen of editorial courtesy in Kentucky, evidently a little personal in its tenor: "A nasty puppy in the person of the editor of a weekly newspaper emanating from a mud hole somewhere in the northeastern part of this State, has taken it into his pate to bark at us. But we are acquainted with the silly cur and [illegible] as the impudent little puppy is cowardly to bite."

A West Chester, Pa., merchant set a steel trap in the cellar to catch rats, and the next morning it was missing. A few days thereafter a boy saw a strange cat enter the cellar carrying a piece of meat in her mouth. She went behind a lot of empty barrels and presently return without the meat. The barrels were removed and there was a cat eating the meat with one leg fast in the missing steel trap.

A Danbury man's order for his wife's hat is a novelty in its way. She was sick and couldn't go for the hat, so he drove in himself. He told the milliner to put on a dollar's worth of parsley, fifty cents' worth of string beans, ten cents' worth of cherries, a few green currants, a beet or two, a little cabbage, and about three slices of turnips, or if it was too early for turnips, make it two new potatoes instead.

A Boston correspondent states that Butler sees that the railroad question is going to be the prominent national issue; that he intends to take the popular side, and that if he is elected Governor he will immediately begin an aggressive policy against them. Furthermore, he says Ben expects to have the support of all the small liquor dealers in the State, as well as the temperance people. Butler probably believes also that the night scavengers will naturally gravitate towards him.

The portrait of Samuel Dexter, third Secretary of the Treasury and once Governor of Massachusetts, will be printed upon the new issue of fifty cent currency in place of that of Mr Stanton. Mr Dexter was born in 1760, and was the leading financier of the country after the Revolution. He died at Athens, New York, in 1816, while on a visit to his son, and was buried there. The stone that marked his grave is still standing, but his remains were removed to Mount Auburn in 1860, and a monument was erected to his memory. That his memory should be thus appropriately revived is an admission that the great men of the past are not wholly forgotten.

PERSONAL NOTES

Hon. Asa Packer has donated to the Lehigh University fifty-six acres of land and one million dollars to build and endow it. For the whole course in this institution the tuition is absolutely free, lodging rooms (unfurnished) are provided, and board placed as near cost as possible.

Kate Field, being what the world would call an old maid, has her ideas of matrimony. WHY THE RED SEA IS CALLED RED

A question that has puzzled scholars found a solution some time since in the observation of an American submarine diver. Smith's Bible Dictionary discusses learnedly the name of the Red Sea as written in the Septuagint. The dictionary surmises that the name was derived from the red western mountains, red coral zoophytes, &c., and appears to give little weight to the real and natural reason which came to the American diver. On one occasion the diver observed, while under sea, that the curious wavering shadows which cross the lustrous golden floor like Fraunhofer's lines on the spectrum began to change and [illegible] themselves. A purple glory of intermingled colors darkened the violet curtains of the sea chambers, reddening all plants and tints with an angry fire. Instead of that lustrous golden firmament, the chalcedonic arch darkened to crimson and opal. The walls grew purple, the floor as red as blood, the deep itself was purpled with the various hue of [illegible] currents.

The view on the surface was even more magnificent. The scant first assumed the light tawny or yellowish red of sherry wine. And this warm color grew deeper with richer radiance, as far as eye could see, and flashing in the [illegible] splendor of the Arabian sun [illegible]. The dusky red sandstone hills with a border of white sand and green and flowing red foliage [illegible] Bohemian glass, crowded with brilliant flowers, held the sparkling liquid [illegible]. The surface, on examination, proved to be covered with a thin [illegible] of infusoria [illegible]. Placed in white glass bottle, this changed into violet, but the wide surface was [illegible]

The Yamhill Reporter says: A few days ago a ten year old son of Mr H. Yocum, near Bellevue, was kicked by a horse, and it is thought fatally wounded. The boy had been riding the horse in front of a hay rake. At this time his hat had blown off and lodged near the horse's hind feet. He went to get his hat, when the horse kicked with both feet, landing the boy twelve or fifteen feet away, having fairly raised him from the ground. The blow was received in the left breast and the injury is internal. The physician attending, we understand, has no hope for his recovery.

SNAKES AND HOGS

THE REASON INDIA IS INFESTED WITH SNAKES—REPTILES DRIVEN [illegible] BACK—THE AMERICAN PIONEER'S BEST FRIEND—A FIGHT BETWEEN A SOW AND A RATTLESNAKE.

[illegible] New York Sun.]

An article [illegible] published in the [illegible] June [illegible] on the [illegible] of the terrible mortality from snake bites in [illegible] which [illegible] some startling facts the [illegible] which the great [illegible] and [illegible] persons who perish annually in British India from attacks by these reptiles [illegible] many as twenty thousand people are killed by snakes in [illegible] Hindostan alone.

From what we read of India it would seem [illegible] the [illegible] densely populated parts of the country are the most infested with poisonous reptiles; in other words where there are the most people there the greatest number of snakes [illegible] be found. Exactly the [illegible] is the case in America so far as our own country extends, for here the more numerous the population the fewer the snakes of the fatal kind, though we have probably a greater variety of deadly serpents than exists in any other quarter of the globe. Among these may be enumerated the several species of moccasin, the copperhead, and that purely American reptile the rattlesnake, which M. [illegible] in his article on le serpent à sonnette says inhabits nearly all the countries of the New World. Besides these and other varieties may be noticed the cotton-mouth of the marshes of the lower Mississippi, a dark, short, muscular viper, with the inside of its mouth perfectly white, which lurks in swampy places, for whose bite no antidote is known, but is quickly followed by certain death.

A DANGEROUS SUPERSTITION.

There are two ways of accounting for the superabundance of snakes in India. One is by the superstitious veneration of the Hindoos for the most deadly serpents which leaves them unmolested and enables them to multiply without limit. Some such result as this must also have been realized in ancient Egypt where all sorts of reptiles were worshipped. Josephus tells us that Moses was in the military service of Pharaoh before he quarreled with that potentate. In one of his expeditions against the Nubians his army was so harassed by the serpents, which swarmed the line of his march up the Nile, that he lost more men by snake bites than from the darts of the Nubians. Indeed his army according to this authority on one or two occasions was nearly put to rout by venomous snakes.

The other and more convincing reason for the vast numbers of snakes in India is the scarcity of hogs in a country where the use of swine's flesh is prohibited as an article of food. Neither the Hindoo nor the Mahometan religion permits the eating of pork in any form. The country is deprived of a most efficient auxiliary in the destruction of these pests. The hog is the mortal enemy of snakes. He kills them because he hates them and devours them when dead. Whenever the increase of this useful animal is encouraged he compensates society for its protection by thus abating a harmful nuisance. But the Hindoo despises the hog while he patronizes the snake and gets rewarded for his preference by his race being stung to death at the rate of twenty thousand annually.

SNAKE DESTROYERS.

The Anglo-Saxon or American differs from the effete East Indian in this as in most other respects. He kills the snake and fosters the hog, which is decidedly the most useful [illegible] of the two. When the Anglo-American undertakes the settlement of a new country he wants three things above all others: An ax, a rifle and a hog. If he chances to go into the wilderness alone, however, the hog soon follows as an inevitable consequence. Just in proportion as the hog multiplies and increases in a newly settled country, in the same ratio do serpents and poisonous reptiles disappear. It is not meant to be implied that any such motive as snake-killing enters into the calculations of the frontiersmen in raising hogs. In general, he does not give the snakes that may infest his neighborhood a thought. He kills them when they come in his way, and forgets them. The hog does the most of that sort of work. He is a most industrious forager, always around in quest of something to eat. In his incessant search for provender, he oftentimes disturbs the snake in his lair, who, as a rule, would prefer to be let alone, but the hog won't let him alone, but snaps him between his teeth, crushes and devours him.

There are also active enemies of the snakes to be found among the things that are feræ naturæ, such as the deer, the elk, &c., which kill by crushing him beneath their sharp hoofs. But these animals only destroy the snake when he comes in their way. The hog goes at him with the twofold incentive of destroying an enemy and devouring him. The result is the snakes give up the contest after a while and glide off to some rocky fastness or impenetrable [illegible]. The hog is almost impervious to the bite of the most deadly serpent. Like the hero of Greek fable he has but one assailable spot, which lies, not in his heel but in his neck. If the snake chances to strike him on the main artery where it passes through the neck near the skin, the hog dies. If he strikes him at any other point the wound amounts to no more than the prick of a pin would, the virus taking no effect whatever. The quadruped seems to be aware of this one danger and guards against it with the skill of a veteran warrior.

A DEADLY ENCOUNTER.

The writer once witnessed a combat between a sow and a rattlesnake of the largest kind, his attention being attracted to the scene by the angry screams of the hog. The snake lay in coil beneath a spreading live oak. The broad, combative head was raised rigidly about six inches over his coiled body, his eyes, bright as diamonds, flashing fury, and his forked tongue darting defiance at his enemy. Every muscle, now in tension, could be traced beneath his skin, while his tail, slightly erected and tremulous with nervous energy, gave forth from the tapering rattle at its extremity that peculiar sharp ringing sound a person never forgets who has heard it once. The sow with bristles erect and tusks bare, circled round the snake, gnashing her teeth, grunting and [illegible] She showed game, but nothing like the nerve of her sinewy antagonist. The sow made divers demonstrations of feints, to which the snake responded by striking from half-coil, but each time instantly recovering himself. At length the sow coming within his reach the snake made a desperate spring of his entire length, fastening his fangs in her fore legs as she sprang away from him. The sow gave an agonized squeal but quickly disengaged herself and before the snake could recover his coil her foot was on his neck, and in another instant she had snapped off his head.

The Anglo-American is a distinguished civilizer no doubt, but he could not well do without the hog, which animal gives him immunity from the bites of deadly snakes. Let the Hindoo discard some of his absurd traditional prejudices and take the hog into favor.

One of the pair slapped Gray's face and Gray, being armed and hot tempered, reached for his revolver, but before he could use it McCarty shot him through the heart. He fell forward and McCarty then shot Gray again. Wilson picked up Gray's pistol and shot him through the head. Hunter expostulated, when they replied that they had a few shots for him. Hunter started his horse and being better mounted than the ruffians escaped, although they followed him twenty miles. They admit the shooting, but say it was in self defense. McCarty surrendered at Julian. Wilson said he was going to San Bernardino for the same purpose when he was overtaken.

ABOUT HARD TIMES.

AMITY, July 28[illegible].

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

Hard times are complained of. What causes them? How can the evil be remedied? Let us analyze the subject a few moments. Could we but form a correct estimate of the money annually extracted from our State in the excess of the sum brought into it, we would readily see what causes the hard times. The simple article of three cent postage stamps is startling. This we can't [illegible] to remedy, but I mention this in connection with necessary evils.

Life and fire insurance companies are [illegible] incredible institutions, but they should be patronized at home instead of sending our money abroad. If every body that sends their money out of this State in behalf of those institutions were to lend their aid to the support of one of each kind at home we could have a life and fire insurance company at home built upon a firm foundation.

Who can estimate the sums annually exported from our State to New York, Chicago, Boston and elsewhere for that purpose? Tens of thousands of the shining hard coin yearly sent to Wisconsin, Boston, Maine, New York, California and to [illegible] of other States for wagons and machinery of all kinds.

You would not believe it if you were to see in figures the amount of money sent from our State for boots, shoes and wearing apparel. When we have a pair of boots made we want to be sure it is not Oregon leather. The [illegible] it has been imported the better. We want to be sure our harness was not made this side of the Rocky Mountains.

Thousands of poor and needy white men and women are excluded from employment and I might say from earning an honest livelihood, and their places are filled by Chinamen who send three fourths of their earnings to China. If we were not to employ a single one of these but employ white persons to fill their places, there would not be so much robbing and plundering done and we could see a little more money afloat.

The only things money is brought into our State for is grain and wool, and the greater amount of that immediately returns to California.

The most of the farmers trade on one year's time at their favorite store. It is generally the case where one deals on credit, that he purchases much more than he would if he paid cash. Their bills will probably run up to $500 per year, whereas if they were to pay as they go it would not be more than half that sum. The result is that when pay day comes, considering the price paid for grain—the proceeds of their year's labor go to the retail dealer, from him to the wholesale merchant, and a large percentage of that is locked up while they forward the rest to New York for a new stock of goods.

I count the [illegible] remote the cause. This it is in this matter. We have found the [illegible] now let us devise how to remedy it. We ought to patronize home industry more and patronize no one that does not [illegible] buy all our wagons, carriages and machinery of [illegible] manufactories. We can get them just as cheap and good made in our State as ten thousand miles away. Economize more—never allow ourselves to be loaded down with the incubus of debt when it can possibly be avoided. If we have not money enough to buy a new hat, let us wear the old one a little longer. Let us raise poultry, milk the cows, make cheese and butter, take eggs to market. In fact let us swap, as the old saying goes, [illegible] and we will soon remove the cause. The merchants would be glad to do this. They want to see the country prosper.

The farmers are the bone and sinew of any country. When they prosper business of all kinds prospers also. They have been badly dealt with for a long time. While they were following the plow or in the harvest field, monopolies and tricky traders were devising how to extort from them the result of their labor [illegible]

Now [illegible] the farmers have [illegible] permanently.

[illegible] here I will say that it is a source of pleasure to know that we have at least one Republican paper—the OREGONIAN—that [illegible] the side of the people, instead of [illegible] the extortionate tariffs and [illegible] every person just for party name.

A FATAL MISTAKE.—The Harrisburg (Pa.) Telegraph says: Bartholomew Mahoney, a resident of Hollidaysburg, visited a place called Dell Delight in this vicinity, on Saturday, thinking that he might stumble across something valuable that had been lost at a picnic the day before. In his peregrinations through the Dell he discovered a demijohn partly filled with vitriol, and which had been used the day previous by the members of the Phoenix Fire Company to charge the [illegible] fountain which had been taken to the picnic ground. Actuated by the belief that it contained whisky or some other intoxicating beverage he raised it to his lips and drank deeply of the contents thereof. [illegible] others present aver that he used a horrible [illegible]

This is [illegible] editorial courtesy in Kentucky, evidently a little personal in its tenor: "A nasty puppy in the person of the editor of a weekly newspaper emanating from a mud hole somewhere in the northwestern part of the State has taken it into his pate to bark at us, but we have not deigned to notice the silly cur. [illegible] feel not in the least bit alarmed at the unpardonable little puppy of cowardly tribe."

A West Chester Pa merchant set a steel trap in the cellar to catch rats and the next morning it was missing. A few days thereafter [illegible] saw a strange cat enter the cellar carrying a piece of meat in her mouth. She went behind one of [illegible] barrels and presently return without the meat. The barrels were removed and there was a cat eating the meat with one leg fast in the missing steel trap.

A Danbury man's order for his wife's hat is a novelty in its way. She was sick and couldn't go for the hat, so he drove in himself. He told the milliner to put on a dollar's worth of parsley, fifty cents' worth of string beans, ten cents' worth of cherries, a few green currants, a beet or two, a little cabbage and about three slices of turnips, or if it was too early for turnips make it two new potatoes instead.

A Boston correspondent states that Butler sees that the railroad question is going to be the prominent national issue, that he intends to take the popular side, and that if he is elected Governor he will immediately begin an aggressive policy against them. Furthermore he says Ben expects to have the support of all the small liquor dealers in the State as well as the temperance people. Butler probably believes also that the night scavengers will naturally gravitate towards him.

The portrait of Samuel Dexter, third Secretary of the Treasury and once Governor of Massachusetts, will be printed upon the new issue of fifty cent currency in place of that of Mr Stanton. Mr Dexter was born in 1760, and was the leading lawyer of the country after the Revolution. He died at Athens, New York, in 1816, while on a visit to his son, and was buried there. The stone that marked his grave is still standing, but his remains were removed to Mount Auburn in 1860, and a monument was erected to his memory. That his memory should be thus appropriately revived is an indication that the great men of the past are not wholly forgotten.

WHY THE RED SEA IS CALLED RED.

A question that has puzzled scholars found a solution some time since in the observation of an American submarine diver. The McMinnville College will open on the 15th of September. The course of instructions for this College are substantially the same as those of our best American Colleges. A full attendance is expected on its opening.

Miss Turpin, daughter of the proprietor of the St Joseph Hotel at Corvallis, had $25 stolen from the bureau drawer in the parlor while she was out attending a funeral last Thursday. Circumstances point to who the thief was.

A span of horses and wagon went over the bank into the river at Amity a few days ago. The driver, Mr Ezra Durham, in the attempt to rescue the animals came very near losing his own life, being struck by one of the horses while in the water. He fortunately succeeded, however, in getting the team out.

The railroad company offers $100 reward for the arrest and conviction of the person or persons who have been guilty of placing obstructions on the track of their road between Cornelius and Laughlin's Gap, and especially for the capture of the person who placed a threshing machine cylinder on the track opposite Par[illegible].

The Yamhill Reporter reports a burglarious attempt thusly: A gentleman awoke about 12 o'clock the other night and saw a man's head coming through the open window into his room. The gentleman didn't say you get, nor the stranger didn't say you bet, but there is reason to say the stranger did get, you bet. [illegible] he was asked what he wanted there.

Judge Rowland of McMinnville, on Wednesday morning received a very severe wound from the kick of a horse. He had just turned the animal loose when it wheeled and kicked him on the hip, prostrating him upon the ground from which he was unable to arise for some time. With assistance he reached home, and the wound, though severe, may not be the cause of any permanent disability.

The Astorian says: Bill Harrington fell overboard Monday night from the wharf near Flavel's warehouse, and his faithful old dog Rover set up a howl that awakened the sleepers in that vicinity and brought help to get Bill out. When first heard, Bill was quietly remarking to Rover, "Go n tell 'em I'm in here, Rover, and I'll die if they don't come and git me out." Rover did his duty and Bill was saved.

The Yamhill Reporter says: A few days ago a ten year old son of Mr H Yocum, near Bellevue, was kicked by a horse, and it is thought fatally wounded. The boy had been riding the horse in front of a hay rake. At this time his hat had blown off and lodged near the horse's hind feet. He went to get his hat, when the horse kicked with both feet, sending the boy twelve or fifteen feet away, having fairly raised him from the ground. The blow was received in the left breast and the injury is internal. The physician attending, we understand, has no hope for his recovery.

THE TERRITORIES.

The ship Canada sailed from Port Townsend for San Francisco last week. She could not get a crew for Callao and had to pay $50 each per man for the run to San Francisco.

There is a report current that Mr E D Fitzhugh, the first Superintendent of the Bellingham Bay coal mines and founder of the town of Sehome, has become insane.

The Olympia Courier mentions a serious accident which occurred to Major Tilton at Tacoma a day or so ago, by the explosion of an infernal machine in the shape of a coffee-pot. Have any disaffected Seattleites been prowling about the Major's kitchen?

The Collector at Port Townsend would not let the ship Canada go to sea with a mutinous crew on board. After hearing the case at length the crew was committed to jail in default of $400 bail, until the November session of the United States District Court.

The Mormon Arizona colonization scheme it seems has resulted in a lamentable collapse. The country was too sterile and too destitute of water even for Mormon endurance, industry and perseverance. The emigration party [illegible] to the extremity of starvation were compelled to give up their desperate undertaking and return to the more tractable deserts of Utah. The Prophet was mistaken in his estimates of the land flowing with milk and honey in Arizona.

NEW PHASE OF INSANITY.—Lately two mysterious fires occurred at Woodland, Yolo county, and no one could account for their origin. A day or two after the last fire a man named Edward Sickerson delivered himself up to the police and voluntarily confessed himself the author of both. He said he had been drinking freely and that whenever he did so he was always seized with an uncontrollable impulse to burn buildings. He did not even know the owners, and had not the slightest motive for burning them, but whenever he indulged in drink he became such in spite of himself. After commitment for examination [illegible] two weeks ago Marshal Strong received through the post office a letter signed [illegible] The case is a strange one and perhaps furnishes a new type of insanity.

The wild land tax which the present Government estimated would produce $20,000 revenue on Vancouver Island will not yield $2,000.

The [illegible] says business is exceedingly brisk at Burrard Inlet just now; there are ten or a dozen vessels loading at present at that place, all of the largest class.

At Burrard Inlet the [illegible] is ready for sea, and will probably be towed out from Hastings Mills immediately by the Maude, which arrived from Victoria. Business is unusually brisk at the mills of Messrs Moody, Dietz & Nelson at present. Not even a Siwash can be had for any reasonable consideration.

Rev J Cave Browne Cave, formerly Catechist of British Columbia, and late of St. Luke's, Birmingham, has been appointed to a curacy at Windsor. Upon leaving Birmingham Mr Cave was presented with a purse containing 78 sovereigns, and Mrs Cave with a silver salver and a cake basket by the congregation.

The steamer Sir James Douglas returned to Victoria from Howe Sound, on the 26th, with Mr Malcolm Munro of Gamsby's railway surveying party. While some of the men were cutting down timber on Squawmish river, four days ago a falling tree struck another tree which gave way and in the fall brought Mr Munro to the ground, producing a comminuted fracture of the left leg between the ankle and knee. The sufferer was packed down the river to the head of the Sound by the party, who were two days in making thirty miles.

Her Majesty's war ship Repulse, now in Victoria, is 83 tons in excess of the Zealous, and carries 12 immense 9-ton guns, weight of broadside 1,300 pounds, whilst the Zealous had 20 guns of much smaller calibre, carrying 585 pounds broadside. The Repulse is furnished with all the latest improvements and is, by long odds, the finest ship that has ever floated on the Pacific. Her tonnage is 3,749 and the engines are of 800 horse power. Amongst the officers is Lieutenant Needham, son of Sir Joseph Needham, Chief Justice of Trinidad, and several others who have been on this coast before. The Repulse has a fine band of fourteen pieces.

HOME INVESTMENT

[illegible] that might [illegible] well [illegible] manufactures is the natural [illegible] specific for the dullness [illegible] manufacture [illegible] Atlantic States [illegible] profits [illegible] Oregon as we get from the large wagon manufactory of Mr. Thos. Cunningham, of Salem, [illegible] farm wagons [illegible]. This one institution [illegible] There are probably other establishments of the same kind in the State doing a large business. We have referred to this as an illustration of what may be done by enterprise and of the sort of institutions that ought to be sustained by public patronage.

The same is true of the various woolen mills of the Beaver Hosiery establishment and of many other enterprises springing up in the State. They ought to be kept running up to their best capacity and only such goods in their respective lines brought from abroad as they cannot produce.

With regard to Insurance we cannot agree with our correspondent. Insurance business is of a peculiar nature. If every State had its own Insurance Companies and patronized no other the rates would be so high as to be a practical prohibition of insurance or else there would be little security to the insured. Suppose Chicago property had been insured in none but Illinois Companies. The great bulk of the policies issued by such Companies would naturally have been upon Chicago risks, that city being the great commercial metropolis of the State. Not a single company under such circumstances could have survived the destruction of $200,000,000 of property. To make insurance safe, the Company's risks, whether against Fire, Shipwreck or death, must be so scattered that no local conflagration, or storm, or epidemic, can embarrass its operations. This is especially true of Fire and Life insurance, which constitute the principal amount of business transacted in this line in Oregon. A Company that would invest the money it receives for premiums in the State where they are collected, would deserve especial favor, but it must be a company whose risks are not confined to any State, or to any section of the country. No company can be considered safe most of whose policies may fall due at once as the result of a single conflagration or the breaking out of a contagious or epidemic disease in a single community.

NOT ALONE

We appreciate highly the compliment our Amity correspondent pays the OREGONIAN in speaking of it as one Republican paper that espouses the cause of the people against all forms of oppression. We have tried to conduct the OREGONIAN upon that platform, and purpose still to do so. But it would be unjust to some other excellent Republican journals in the State not to share the praise with them. We could name quite a number of Republican papers in Oregon that are battling nobly for the people and against all rings, commercial and political. Indeed, this opposition to all imposition is one of the essential elements of Republicanism, and it is only when the Republican party has fallen into the hands of unscrupulous politicians who think more of the emoluments of office and the spoils of political dishonesty that it even seems to countenance any of the unrepublican wrongs that now so agitate the public mind.

The Fourth of July was celebrated in Vienna by a grand banquet at the Blumen Sacle which was attended by some 200 hundred Americans and a number of distinguished foreigners. In response to a toast to "The Vienna Exposition of 1873," Baron von Schwarz-Senborn alluded to his residence in Paris during the siege and told how one evening just before he went to his usual horse meat dinner he received a letter from his Emperor commanding him to leave the French Capital at once for Vienna, to create the Universal Exposition of 1873. The Baron continues:

After I had opened the letter I said to my American friends: well now, I have just received the command to go to Vienna and organize the Exposition. I invite you and all your countrymen to come and visit the Exposition. You must come, [illegible] reasons. The first reason is that I have much sympathy for America—["Hear, hear."] more than that I am a sincere friend of the United States. ["Bravo."] [illegible] that, I am bound to the United States by the highest feelings that affect the human heart. My brother-in-law is an American [illegible] with him in New York for now twenty-eight years. ["Bravo."] [illegible] Americans must help me in my great work. The second reason is that the Americans are a [illegible] people [illegible] they are progressive [illegible]

THE STREET OFFICERS

[illegible] this [illegible] of our streets [illegible] things was unsatisfactory [illegible] great and unnecessary [illegible] members of the Council who happened to be named as members of the Committee on Streets and Public Property [illegible] Streets and Public Property [illegible] It matters little whether that officer is the Surveyor or Superintendent. One or the other should be at the head of the street department and should direct the other. By this means the work will be done much more satisfactorily and the expense of keeping up two distinct departments of engineering will be avoided.

The reform suggested by the Mayor is now being perfected by a committee of the Council. Though we cannot expect a perfect system at once it is to be hoped this is the first step in a reformation that shall be productive of good results as time and experience shall develop its best possible workings.

The same difficulty, it appears, is troubling San Francisco that we have to contend with, the dual form of their Street Department and its consequent inefficiency, and the remedy proposed is exactly the same as that we are trying to adopt. The San Francisco Bulletin of July 23d, discussing this subject says:

At present there are two officials having charge of this class of improvements but neither of them entirely occupies the position which corresponds to that of City Engineer in other cities. The City Surveyor has charge of the lines and grades, or in other words the surface of the street after it is completed and there his jurisdiction ends. But the material of which the street shall be constructed, its thickness and the manner in which it shall be laid, in fact all the elements which affect the value of the improvements, cost and the time it will remain in good repair, are under the control of the Superintendent of Public Streets. And herein lies the anomaly. These very points call into requisition the abilities of a first-class engineer. They require an intimate knowledge of the value of various materials, the experiments which have been made elsewhere and their results, and the best mode of using these materials so as to obtain the ends sought for, which one cannot expect a person to attain unless his life has been devoted to this kind of business.

Yet the necessity of possessing this knowledge has never been looked upon as one of the essentials in a Superintendent of Streets, and the city has year after year placed the expenditure of its street funds in the hands of those who, however desirous they may have been to discharge their trusts faithfully, were not qualified by previous training to do so. It is so also in relation to the sewerage. The authority of the City Surveyor in this matter is limited to setting the official grade and line of the street where the sewer is to be constructed and subsequently examining the depth of manholes for the information of the office of the Street Superintendent, but the size of the sewer, the grade on which it shall be laid and the material of which it shall be constructed are fixed by the latter officer. Here again is scope for large engineering knowledge, and what is true of the relation of the Superintendent of Streets to the construction of streets is equally true of his relation to the sewerage of the city, if not more so.

The whole system is wrong, radically wrong. It may have been good enough for the days in which it originated, but the time of its utility is long passed and a change is imperatively called for in the interests of the city, both in a pecuniary and sanitary view. The control of our streets, whether on the surface or below it, should be committed to one intelligent management, it matters not by what name it may be called. The materials of which our streets are constructed should be good even though they may be primarily expensive. The manner in which they are to be constructed should be set forth in detail in the specifications, so that the property owners may know what they are paying for, and those who have charge of the work as deputies may know what to demand of the contractor, and the final acceptance of a piece of work should not be left to the unbiased judgment of the party who draws the specifications and who may draw them loosely, inserting a clause that the work shall be done to his satisfaction, to cover up any defects in the specifications. Every detail in the work should be set forth in these specifications, and the work should be accepted only when these are [illegible]. We should then have better streets than the city can show to-day.

In short the city should have a thoroughly competent City Engineer, and two deputies under him should fill the duties now performed by the City Surveyor and the Superintendent of Streets. We should then have some one who would be responsible for the condition of our streets, and might hope for better days. There would then be some hope for a more perfect sewerage than we have to-day, and more work done for the money expended in street work [illegible] utility.

Dr. J. G. Holland, editor of Scribner's Monthly, in the August number, among his excellent remarks to young writers in regard to the means of securing literary recognition, says: "The magazines of America cannot possibly publish more than one in twenty-five of the manuscripts sent to them, and that to write an article so good that an editor must take it is the best and quickest introduction possible." A writer in the same number [illegible] the Kings English [illegible] Mr. Richard Grant White has called attention.

Portland July 1 1873

A remonstrance against the proposed construction of sewers has been drawn up and we are informed, is being extensively signed. It is now at the office of Atkinson Woodward & Co., real estate agents, where signatures are received. Without expressing any opinion as to whether it is best to stop the proposed improvement we can say as one who has had a good deal to do with the Common Council that the members of that body are much better able to serve the people when the people take pains to make their wishes known by means of petitions, remonstrances, &c. Thus are the public servants advised of the will of those they endeavor to serve.

FRIDAY MORNING AUGUST 1, 187[illegible]

CITY.

GLANCE AT SHIPPING.—A [illegible] taken from the [illegible] front of Portland taken from [illegible] wharf is calculated to impress [illegible] with the character extent and importance of the shipping interests of the city. For a city situated nearly 100 miles from the ocean Portland can boast of the number [illegible] vessels which come and depart and [illegible] the numerous river steamers that ply on the waters of the Wallamet and Columbia. [illegible] day great numbers of these river steamers [illegible] be seen lying along the river front [illegible]. Yesterday afternoon while standing [illegible] east side depot, we counted the [illegible] ers and sailing crafts included [illegible] sweep of the eye. Every vessel [illegible] wharves can be taken in [illegible] upper saw mill we found the bark [illegible] Forward and Edward James at the [illegible] the boats Fannie McNeil [illegible] the old condemned craft Okanogan [illegible] just above the boneyard [illegible] ferry boat and south of the ferry landing [illegible] steamers Senator and R N Cook [illegible] Gussie Telfair. Between the foot of [illegible] street and Flanders' wharf the tug [illegible] and new dredger besides a number of [illegible] of far less pretension were lying. At Flanders wharf the bark [illegible] and Clara Louise are lying both discharging. At the Willamette River Transportation Co's wharf the steamers Gov Grover Shoshone and Vancouver were moored. Glancing at the O S N Co's wharf, we saw the steamers Emma Hayward, Onoata and Fannie Troup. Above this wharf and below Stark street, were moored a number of crafts scows etc, and prominent among which could be seen Commissioner Burke's pleasure sloop the Iona Dillon. From the foot of Washington street up to the upper sawmill, we counted the Calliope, [illegible] Orme, Maria Wilkens and the partially completed but handsome little boat Fite May besides a great many other smaller crafts scarcely worthy of mention. Not many cities of equal size and population can present a better showing in the shipping line than the above.

REMONSTRANCES.—Remonstrances are now in circulation among the property owners of what is known as the Central District and Clay Street District, against the proposed system of sewerage in these districts. There is one peculiarity about the law in regard to the proposed system of sewerage which entitles every property owner in the district to sign the remonstrances. In the case of street improvements—other than for laying sewers—property abutting directly on the street to be improved, is taxed to pay the cost of the improvement. Owners of such property are, as a matter of course entitled to sign any remonstrance against a proposed improvement, but no one but those immediately and directly interested can do so. With reference to the laying of sewers, the city has been divided into two districts—Central and Clay street. Not only is the property that abuts on the streets along which the sewers are to be laid [illegible] for such improvements but all the property within the limits of the district is [illegible] in proportion to the benefits which are expected to accrue by reason of the improvement. This being the case, every person who owns property in the district is entitled to sign a remonstrance. The remonstrances have already been numerously signed by the resident property holders in the sewer districts. For convenience, the remonstrances are kept at the office of Atkinson & Woodward under Oro Fino Theater. Persons interested can call and examine for themselves and ascertain the boundaries of the respective districts.

A MAMMOTH WAREHOUSE.—The mammoth warehouse on the east side of the river below the ferry landing, is now completed and ready to receive freight. This is the largest building of its kind in the State. The capacity for storing freight is immense. The building is 417 feet long, 80 feet wide, and two stories high. It is estimated that this building can hold, with safety, 1,000,000 bushels of wheat. A track has been laid along the center of the warehouse, on the lower story through the entire length. Trains can come in loaded and back out after discharging freight on either side. Along the upper side of the building extending into the bluff at a highth level with the second floor, a track has been laid so that loaded trains can back down and discharge freight in the upper story. Ten large chutes extend from the second floor down to the first. If desired, the grain or other freight can be shot down the sharp incline, and thus avoid an immense amount of labor and unnecessary handling. On the side next to the river a wide platform extends along the whole length of the warehouse. Freight can be trucked out on this platform and placed on board vessels by means of chutes with less than half the labor ordinarily required.

DOG RUN OVER.—A large and valuable dog was run over yesterday afternoon at the Fourth street bridge by the passenger train bound north. It appears that the dog had started to cross the bridge to the south side of the gulch and when about half way over the train dashed around the curve and came in sight. The poor animal could not leap to the bottom of the ravine, a distance of about 90 feet and it would be impossible for it to retreat or run forward to the end of the bridge before the locomotive would be on it. On thundered the train and the poor creature was run over both fore legs crushed off and its body otherwise mangled. It hung between two ties until a kind hearted person came along and took the animal away. The dog lived a short time and died. From our own knowledge of the track, at that point there seems no earthly excuse for the [illegible] simple and insignificant as it may appear. The engineer must certainly have seen the animal while the train was at least two hundred yards off. It would have been an easy matter to have slacked the speed of the train and allowed the animal an opportunity to make his escape. If there is no excuse the conduct of the engineer was to say the least, heartless and cruel.

A HANDSOME COMPLIMENT.—The Alta of a recent date, speaking of Mr Edward's benefit said: The Theater was crowded by an auditory of which Henry Edwards the beneficiary of the evening, might well be proud. We observed among those present many members of the aristocracy of intelligence and some of the aristocracy of money who had evidently collected to pay tribute of respect to a gentleman as well as to enjoy a fine performance. When Mr Edwards first made his appearance he was loudly applauded and repeatedly again after the close of the piece. He was called before the curtain and compelled to speak. He said he had so often had occasion to thank the people of San Francisco for their kindness to him that he was sure they would not expect him to say much now. He would remind them of Shakespeare's remark—Silence is the perfect herald of joy—and he would only add a renewed assurance of thanks.

MONTHLY MISSIONARY CONCERT.—The Missionary Concert of the Taylor street M E Sunday School for August will be held on next Sunday at 2 o clock P M. The public as usual, are cordially invited. The following programme has been prepared for the occasion: Singing by the school; prayer; duet, Bell Sutherland and Eva Austin; recitation, "Temptation," Herbert Northrup; quartette—chant, Messrs Morgan Morse Franklin and Noon; original dialogue, Laura Smith and Ada Northrup; review—lesson W Intenational Series, Rev George W Izer; [illegible] Lulu Marshall; dialogue [illegible] Mathews Bros; quartette [illegible] Hills, Messrs Morgan Morse Frank[illegible] Noon; address, Rev Wm [illegible]; exercises.

OREGON MUSEUM.—In [illegible] with the gentleman who is [illegible] up a State Museum we [illegible] that the rooms in Smith's new building will be ready to open within three weeks. [illegible] has already secured a large [illegible] and minerals and the [illegible] be connected with the museum [illegible] taining still more. We understand [illegible] open with a much larger variety [illegible] first anticipated. Any persons [illegible] riosities or instances of [illegible] will [illegible] for a favor by sending them addressed to the Oregon Museum. Such an institution will [illegible] much toward advertising our State [illegible] pecially in the scientific world.

MUSIC ON THE PLAZA.—The [illegible] Brass Band will give their first [illegible] Plaza to-morrow evening. The [illegible] will appear in to-morrow's [illegible]

[illegible] SOUNDINGS.—Capt [illegible] Randall of [illegible] Engineer Corps [illegible] went down the river yesterday [illegible]. The object is to make [illegible] the bar and shoal places. Soundings will be made all along [illegible] where the water is the shallowest. Mr Randall will commence [illegible] at St Helens. After carefully sounding [illegible] that point he will proceed down [illegible] the [illegible] Bar [illegible] Astoria. In [illegible] the shallowest points is found the dredger will [illegible] that place and commence [illegible]

TALL OATS.—A bunch of the tallest and [illegible] oats we have seen [illegible] cut from a field of oats on the farm of Mr Wm Hall [illegible] miles from Corvallis in Marion county. Nearly [illegible] feet high [illegible] will yield 40 bushels to the acre.

[illegible].—A gentleman who has just returned from an extended trip through Yamhill Polk and a portion of Marion counties states that the prospects of grain this season in those sections over which he traveled were never better or more flattering. The breadth of grain sown this year is far greater than that of any previous year for a long time. The season has been remarkably propitious; the crops of wheat and oats and barley are looking splendid and the yield will be large. The farmers are now in the midst of their harvesting and are greatly elated over the prospects.

SOLDIERS.—By the steamer Ajax which arrived [illegible] fourteen soldiers from San Francisco. These soldiers belong to the First Cavalry and are fragments of Companies B K [illegible] M and [illegible]. All these fellows have seen active service down in Arizona and have been fighting Apaches for several years. Two of these soldiers will be ordered to San Juan Island and the remaining twelve to Walla Walla. Yesterday morning they left for Vancouver where they will remain for a few days. The next steamer will bring up portions of Companies A [illegible] D and [illegible] of the same regiment.

CATTLE INCLOSURE.—Heretofore a small and temporarily built corral has been the only inclosure in which cattle, horses hogs and sheep could be kept at the east side depot while awaiting shipment. Much inconvenience was experienced on account of the [illegible] and [illegible] what insecure character of the fence. A few days ago the old fence was torn down and a considerable space is now being inclosed. The new fence is being built of strong lumber set on end. It is strong enough to resist a wild steer and tight enough to keep a small hog within the limits.

SPECIMENS OF GRAIN.—The Advocate says: "Mr John A Slavin brought to this office last week a few specimens of oats and timothy that had grown in the woods without cultivation. The oats was about six feet high with a large number of grains well filled. The timothy was over five feet high with heads more than a foot in length. These specimens were taken East by Rev W H Miese who had gathered a number of the products of our Oregon soil to exhibit in his lectures."

CHILD SCALDED.—A little child aged about six months daughter of a Mrs Mongo of East Portland was severely scalded yesterday morning while the family were at breakfast. A cup of scalding coffee had just been poured out, and while the attention of the family was called away for a moment, the child upset the contents of the cup on itself. The right arm and side were severely scalded. The little sufferer is getting along well and will soon recover.

SEVERE ACCIDENT.—We learn from the Sentinel that an accident occurred at St Paul French Prairie last Saturday by which a young man named J Coleman was severely injured by being dragged some distance by a runaway horse the rope with which he was leading the animal having in some way got fast to one of his legs. Young Coleman's face and chest was considerably lacerated and it is feared that he has sustained internal injuries.

DOING WELL.—Mr Wharton the painter who fell through a sky-light in Thompson's brick building, on Wednesday evening is doing very well. Both wrists were badly sprained the side of his head cut with glass, and one knee bruised. No bones were broken although he fell a distance of nearly 20 feet. With proper care and treatment Mr Wharton will be able to commence work in a few weeks.

FROM GOOSE LAKE.—Mr Geo Clark, formerly a resident of East Portland returned on Wednesday evening from the Goose Lake country. He will probably remain here some time before returning. Mr Clark brought with him specimens of gold bearing quartz which were recently discovered in that country. This quartz is very rich in the precious metal and in copper.

TEACHERS ELECTED.—At a regular meeting held on Wednesday evening by the Board of Directors of School District No 21, in East Portland Mr Delano was elected Principal of the school, vice Prof W W Freeman resigned. Miss Helen Van Cleave and Mr C C Hall were elected to take charge of the Primary Departments of the school.

QUARTZ ROCK.—One hundred and fifty one sacks of gold-bearing quartz came down the Columbia a few days ago. This quartz came from the vicinity of Umatilla and will be sent to San Francisco to be crushed, and the precious metal separated from the stone.

TIMES OF SAILING.—The steamer Ajax will sail for San Francisco this evening at 6 o clock. The steamer Gussie Telfair will sail for Victoria Port Townsend Nanaimo Fort Wrangle and Sitka on Saturday August 9th.

REGULAR MEETING.—There will be a regular meeting of the St Vincent De Paul Society at 4 o clock P M. Business of importance will be transacted and a full attendance is desired.

Rev J F DeVore comes to the defense of the Methodist pastor at Tacoma—Rev S H Mann. Services have been held at the new railroad terminus for nearly a year.

Rev Dr Dillon and family, Rev G W Izer, Rev J S McCain and several others, have gone to the mountains part bound for the everlasting snows of Mt Hood. Dr Dillon and family left this city last Saturday morning and will probably be gone two weeks.

FINALLY DECIDED.

It is an old but true saying that a man is known by the books he reads and the company he keeps. This saying is illustrative of the great sewing machine war in which nearly all the second-class machines have played prominent parts expending much ammunition and making forced marches attended with great loss. But our readers have not seen the name of the world renowned GROVER & BAKER SEWING MACHINE flourished before the people in the above connection, and this dignified reserve has established the popularity of the GROVER & BAKER SEWING MACHINE, now and forever. It stands on its respectability and merits. These machines make the ELASTIC STITCH and SHUTTLE STITCH and will be sold on installments of $10 per month. W F Shanahan agent 71 First street.

COLEMAN'S EUCALYPTUS

Dr J S Coleman's Compound Extract of Eucalyptus is a preparation combining all the valuable medical qualities of the Eucalyptus which is cultivated in nearly every California garden for its medical utility having become the household remedy for all diseases of the KIDNEYS BLADDER and URINARY CANAL and SEMINAL WEAKNESS. It seems to have a direct affinity for the GENITO URINARY ORGANS and their surrounding [illegible] them by its [illegible] healing and balsamic properties more effectually than any other known remedy.

It is an invaluable remedy for all diseases of the mucous and serous membranes such as BRONCHITIS, HACKING COUGH NAUSEA DURING PREGNANCY DYSPEPSIA LEUCORRHEA etc.

This preparation is the result of Dr Coleman's experiments with the medicinal properties of the tree in the U S Marine Hospital in San Francisco in 1871 and 1872, where he had unusual facilities for testing the various methods of preparing the remedy and its uses. It can be relied upon as certain to give the promised results and hundreds of testimonials of its efficacy can be seen at his office 405 Kearney street San Francisco.

COLEMAN'S DOUBLE EXTRACT OF EUCALYPTUS is a powerful yet harmless [illegible] preparation for the treatment of the malarious fevers of our [illegible] FEVER AND AGUE treated with [illegible] while the baneful results of the usual Quinine and arsenical remedies of those diseases are entirely avoided.

FINANCE AND COMMERCE.

Financial

[illegible]

Many able writers on finance [illegible] the blame of disordered state [illegible] Congress alone but we hardly [illegible] the people entirely free from [illegible] sponsible in the matter as [illegible] national bank notes [illegible] currency and assert with truth that bank notes [illegible] at the option of the banks in either [illegible] or Gold are no better than Greenbacks. They therefore insist that the [illegible] United States as interest on the bonds [illegible] the Government to secure bank circulation is so much [illegible] at Washington [illegible] Government argues that as the bank notes [illegible] at the bank counters in Gold [illegible] greenbacks [illegible] were not obtainable the bank notes would be redeemable in gold? But it is not clear that if there were no bank notes in existence greenbacks would be any nearer par than at present. They certainly would not [illegible] three hundred millions of bank notes were withdrawn from circulation and an equal amount of Treasury notes substituted.

It is further claimed Congress has thus far refused to enact the legislation necessary to bring the paper circulation [illegible] the people have not thus far [illegible] practicable remedy which is too obvious to need more than a statement [illegible] reduce the volume of greenbacks and increase the volume of [illegible]. Everybody knows that this would [illegible] and without any [illegible] business. But if the remedy is so perfectly plain it may be asked why has it not been [illegible]. The answer has been at least partially anticipated. First the people object [illegible] the banks object third the brokers [illegible] They all make money by the fluctuations of money.

Miscellaneous.

The New York Times of July 13th quotes [illegible] in that city thus: Of Oregon [illegible] small lots of choice extras were placed at [illegible] 75 ℔ bbl. California flour has been quite dull with fair to very choice extra quoted nominal at [illegible]

The price of gold in January 1876 ranged from [illegible] in February [illegible] Since then it has not been under [illegible] which point it touched June 28 and July 2.

There has been an accumulation to the credit of San Francisco at the East and $600,000 in coin has been received from New York by transfer through the Treasury and a similar further sum will come shortly. The state of credits on this coast this Autumn is likely to be the reverse of what it was last Autumn, when the large proceeds of the crops were drawn upon heavily to meet unusual payments.

The new Trade dollar is coming into circulation at San Francisco and meets with much favor. But few have reached this market.

Home Produce Market.

WHEAT—We see but little doing in the wheat market at present nor is a revival of business likely to occur before the incoming new crop. Dealers are now offering $1 40 per cental sacked for good of the old but claim that the new crop will open at $1 40a1 45. They and the farmers are not likely to agree and sales will probably be slow at the opening. This is usually the last day of the harvest year but the season being later than usual the old is not yet all off nor has the new [illegible]. During the year we have shipped to Europe twenty-five cargoes or about 550,000 centals of the value of $1[illegible],000. We will have more than this in the coming year by at least one-fourth and it is thought that there are at least 200,000 bushels yet in the country of the last year's crop.

FLOUR—The stocks in the hands of agents and dealers here is not quite up to the average in quantity, and a firm market is noticed at $5 per barrel for extra of standard brands $4 25a4 75 for outside and good country brands $3 70a4 for superfine.

OATS—There is but little tone to the market [illegible] being rather wary owing to the nearness of the new crop. Most of the purchases the past week have been made at 45 cents per bushel sacked but we quote at that to-day with caution, as the [illegible] weaker and lots have been sold at [illegible]. Perhaps the latter would be nearer for future guidance.

BARLEY—But little is in the market and freely taken at $1 40a1 45 per cwt. The new crop it is reported will be larger than ever before in our state.

HAY—Up to to-day the supply during the week specially under review has been quite liberal. Some diminution in receipts however has strengthened [illegible] firs and prices are firm at $12 50 per ton for baled timothy and $10 50a11 50 for loose.

FEED—The market has undergone no important change since our last report. Bran quotable at $18 per ton and weak; chops, middlings etc, $2[illegible]

Demand light.

POTATOES—The supply is liberal and prices are weak at 50a60c per bushel. We hear of small lots of choice hanging hands at [illegible] but the former figures are perhaps nearer the average.

DRIED FRUIT—We quote a fair supply of apples at 6a6½c ℔ ℔ in sks and 7a7½c in kegs. Pitless plums are quotable at 18a20c ℔ ℔.

BACON—The call is rather better than last week and prices though not materially advanced [illegible] more easily obtained. We quote the market firm at 8a9c ℔ ℔ for shoulders, 10a12½c for sides, and [illegible] for hams.

LARD—Oregon lard in tins is quotable at 12a13½ cents per ℔ in kegs 11 cents. The demand is moderate and well supplied.

BUTTER—The receipts of choice lots have been light, and prices for the best for table use are firm at 22a25 cents. The current quotations for such as [illegible] fresh roll [illegible] 16a22 In kegs etc 14a17 cents.

CHEESE—We note a fair supply from [illegible] dairies which commands 16a1[illegible] cents. California is in the market in good supply.
